

Manifesto

I'm involved in the Joomla project from its very beginning. During my big adventure with this community I hold several positions within the leadership and the community such as:

- Director at OSM board of directors
- OSM Liaison to Joomla Extensions Directory
- Joomla Traveller Programme co-initiator and Team Leader
- Events Team leader
- Social Media Team member
- Marketing & Communication Department Coordinator
- and a few other positions. I was also involved in Polish and German local communities and helped to organise the very first JoomlaDay Poland

So I have some experience in how our community works, feels and loves. I have also gained experience in the work as the department coordinator and OSM director. I consider myself an Open Source evangelist as I love to spread the good words about free (as in freedom) software and its benefits around the globe giving talks and speeches and even just within my own family annoying my love ones with all good alternatives. Unfortunately after a burnout a few years ago, I had to leave this great community. Now, that I am slowly recovering, I hope to gain trust and acceptance of this community again so I could also profit from the good feeling which I always gained from my voluntarily engagement in this project.

My vision for this role is fairly simple or at least it sounds that way. I would like to act as a coordinator and help with communication between the particular teams and also between the teams and the board of directors. My biggest goal is always to empower community members, because as I know from my experience, this community consists of very skilful people.

Cheerio,
